

CCS is for everyone!

Do you long to integrate spiritual practices more deeply into your life? Do you read the news and wonder “What is my role in the power and privilege I see or in oppression and resistance?” Are you curious about how the way we tell our stories shapes our lives and our world?

Whether you’re clergy, lay or exploring a call to ministry, learning circles at the Centre for Christian Studies offer a place to sink in to important questions and issues.

When diaconal minister Catherine Gutjahr was confronted with the question of power and privilege and her role in the congregation, she took her wondering to the Power and Privilege learning circle. There she was able to explore through readings, discussions and engaged theological reflection. She came away grateful for a chance to dive deep and aware of how important it is to continue to do that.

Learning Circles at the Centre for Christian Studies are open to anyone looking for a place to explore. They are at once renewing, challenging and opening. Curious? Check out upcoming learning circles at CCS.

“Humbling

When there is authentic conversation, there is possibility to be changed,
transformed.”
